PFCCpartners

Lindsey Galli is the Vice President of Programs at PFCCpartners, where she champions equitable collaboration between healthcare stakeholders—patients, family caregivers, healthcare providers, and communities. Through her leadership, Lindsey empowers healthcare organizations to build authentic partnerships that drive meaningful improvements in care delivery and patient outcomes. In 2016, Lindsey’s personal journey as a patient, following a nine-day hospitalization due to multiple blood clots in her lungs and leg, profoundly shaped her dedication to transforming healthcare. This pivotal experience deepened her commitment to ensuring that patients and caregivers have a voice in shaping their care—whether at the bedside or in boardroom discussions. Today, Lindsey combines her lived experience with professional expertise to design and implement innovative programs that foster genuine collaboration in healthcare. Her efforts span the development of patient and family engagement strategies nationwide, creating systems where every stakeholder contributes to advancing equity and improving outcomes.
